Library Corner

I Remember When – By Lucy Steinhaus,
Mother of Residents-Ina Brooks & Jo-Anne Klint

This is a story of life on a farm in Northern Nebraska, spanning a period of nearly 100 years. To some extent, it is a family chronicle, but it is a great deal more than just childhood memories and adventures. It is largely a story of work - hard work - of trying to provide a living for our family and to make a home from bare essentials.

This is a picture of pioneer life, of the determination to put down roots in unreceptive soil, and of the spirit to keep trying in the face of trouble and disaster, always being aware of the things that really count--friendships, the joys of happy relationships, and of a long and harmonious marriage underscoring the deep down true values that make life worth living. (Available S.R. Library)

Have you noticed changes happening in our library? The Sierra Regency Library Committee has been working hard to refresh the shelves. Thank you for your continued patience.
